

Peace Restored to Peiping and Environs Suddenly Tonight

CHINESE TROOPS AVERT INVASION BY WITHDRAWAL

American Lives Were Endangered In Bombing of Tientsin

SEVERAL BUILDINGS THERE DESTROYED

Pro - Japanese Chinese General In as Gen. Sung Goes Out

SHANGHAI, July 29.—(Friday)—A Domei (Japanese) news agency dispatch from Tientsin said today that Chinese at Tientsin had proposed an armistice in Sino-Japanese hostilities and that the Japanese had not replied.

PEIPING, July 29.—Peace returned to Peiping and its battle-scarred environs with startling suddenness tonight.

While Japanese air bombs and shells blasted Chinese armies at Tientsin, 90 miles to the east, every Chinese soldier withdrew from the Peiping area where the Sino-Japanese trouble began three weeks ago; General Sung Chih-Yuan, erstwhile belligerent Peiping Chinese war lord, went out, and a pro-Japanese Chinese general came in. General Sung, 29th army commander and chairman of the Hopeh-Chahar regime, announced in person the transfer of all authority hereabouts to Gen. Chang Tzu-Chung, pro-Japanese commander of the army's 39th division. (Chinese news papers in Shanghai sung and cried: "Betrayal").

Sung and units of the 29th army which erected barricades against a possible Japanese invasion in the city yesterday withdrew to Paoting-fu, 50 miles southwest of Peiping.

It became apparent that Chinese leaders to whom the Japanese objected were getting out of local affairs and that leaders approved by the Japanese were stepping into their shoes.

This development was viewed as explaining the sudden end of fighting near Peiping.

Although the former battle zones to the south were quiet, the toll of Japanese shelling yesterday became apparent as thousands of wounded Chinese from war torn villages filtered into the city.

The embassy quarter viewed the high point of the crisis as having passed. The United States embassy took down its concentration signals, although Americans who had taken refuge there had not begun to disperse.

Forming Peace Body
TOKYO, July 29.—(AP)—Messages from Peiping today indicated a "peace preservation committee" was being formed among Chinese bankers, businessmen and politicians with General Chiang Chao-Tsung, elderly former premier of the defunct Peiping government, as chairman.

The committee was to supplant the regime of General Sung Chih-Yuan, Chinese 29th army commander and chairman of the Hopeh-Chahar political council. The dispatches said Sung's "desertion" from Peiping left it virtually without a government.

Thousands Killed or Injured
Flames from Japanese aerial bombardments roared through sections of Tientsin tonight after planes bearing the red insignia of the rising sun took a toll declared by Chinese to be thousands of non-combatant men, women and children killed and injured.

The bombardment, carried out to rout a Japanese attack that threatened to drive Japanese from the city, endangered the lives of many Americans and other foreigners.

Lieut. General Kiyoshi Katsuki, Japanese commander in North China, told foreign consultants the action was to "protect" the 10,000 Japanese who live in the Tientsin Japanese concession. He declared the men acted in accordance with the Boxer protocol of 1901 in which China undertook not to station Chinese troops within two miles of Tientsin.

Among the 1,376 Americans in Tientsin was Lieutenant Paul W. Caraway, son of Senator Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas.

In Tokyo, Japan's foreign minister, Koki Hirota, told the Diet that the Japanese government would reject Japanese "interference" by a third power in the conflict.

Japanese officers declared the acute situation compelled them to ignore "earlier assurances not to expose the city's foreign residents to peril."

TEN THOUSAND FARMERS TO GET REFUNDS ON INTEREST

By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, July 29.—Ten thousand farmers in Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas were entitled today to refunds on interest charges on farm loans, the federal land bank announced here through its president, Walter L. Rust.

Rust said the refunds would be the difference between the 3 1/2 percent emergency rate, recently extended by congress, and the 4 to 5 1/2 percent contract rates, and would be ready in about 30 days.

Disputes identified the commander as "General Arubenseco," and said further that the "foreign chief" of the fourth international brigade was captured with all his general staff.

Insurgent sources said a new offensive against government held Santander, on the Bay of Biscay, was "imminent."

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's eastern army was reported to have driven across the Teruel-Cuenca provincial border, poised like a scalpel over the Spanish government's Madrid-Valencia lifeline.

While the battle for Madrid on the inland city's western front lapsed into a deadlocked lull, the insurgent chief's army, some 100 miles east of Madrid, were reported thrusting slowly south from the rocky Albarracin sector toward the provincial capital, Cuenca.

The drive was aimed at the vital highway link between Madrid and Valencia, Mediterranean port and temporary capital of the Republic government.

Severance of this route over which supplies, troops and communications have passed back and forth between the two major cities held by the government might bring the final war victory which Franco was unable to achieve in nearly nine months of siege at Madrid.

Take Towns in Mountains
In the last week of the push on Cuenca the insurgents have seized a half dozen towns in the barren, mountainous territory and advanced 20 miles to the point where the provinces of Guadalajara, Cuenca and Teruel meet.

Franco and the Spanish government matched statistics in conflicting claims of victory west of Madrid where today's chief activity was burial of the dead and fortification work.

The insurgents put the cost of Gen. Jose Mija's government's sale into insurgent rear guard territory on the Madrid front at 200 fighting planes and 30,000 casualties. They called the drive an expensive failure.

The government estimated Franco had lost from 20,000 to 25,000 men and had poured about $15,000,000 worth of war materials into the struggle to keep intact his siege lines. Franco's losses in the air totaled at least 100 planes to the government's 29 or 30, it was said in Madrid.

Insurgents said that many of the government's 7,000 dead still lie in piles under the blazing sun in now abandoned trenches and the shell-baked villages west of Madrid.

MAKE ATTEMPT TO PASS SOME OF CHIEF MEASURES

Action Sought on Wage-Hour, Housing and Court Bills

SENATE MEETS AN HOUR EARLIER

Leaders Understood To Be Hoping For Early Adjournment

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Majority Leader Rayburn told the house today that congress should be able to adjourn in three weeks.

"Unless there is a tie up on the court bill in the senate, by some thing arising to call a halt," Rayburn said, "we can finish all of this (legislative) program in three weeks. There is a degree of certainty that we can adjourn at that time and not be forced into a session between now and December."

Questioned by Minority Leader Snell about the program, Rayburn said accounts of it, published today following a conference yesterday between President Roosevelt and legislative leaders, were "encouraging."

He spoke of prospects of senate action this week on wage and hour legislation, and on the court bill next week. These measures head the program.

The house labor committee, he said, should approve the wage and hour bill this week or the first of next.

At his press conference, Speaker Bankhead said he thought house members were "going to be reasonable about not being stamped" into adjournment.

Meanwhile, members received a communication urging them to attend tomorrow a meeting to organize a steering committee "which will make every effort to keep congress in session until a final vote is had on the Black-Connery fair labor standards act."

The court bill to which Rayburn referred is awaiting senate action behind two other measures—the wage-hour bill and the Wagner housing bill.

Amendments Are Proposed
Senator Austin (R-Vt.) opened the attack on the wage-hour measure today. He argued all phases of the nation's economic life would suffer under it. He said it would set up "a statutory monopoly of the right of labor to work."

There are numerous proposed amendments to the bill which the senate had to clear away before final action would be possible.

Before taking up the labor measure, the senate approved a resolution directing its agriculture committee to investigate the American Cotton Cooperative Association.

The committee was directed to find out how the association finances and markets its cotton, what profits it derives, what losses if any have been incurred by farmers and the nature of the association's membership and financial structure.

The administration's long-pending but little worked upon plan for reorganizing the executive branch of the government became a matter for more intense legislative consideration today when the senate committee handling it ordered ten days of public hearings beginning Monday.

The committee chose Senator Byrnes (D-SC) to succeed the late Senator Robinson (D-Ark) as chairman. Committee members apparently agreed the reorganization program had little chance of enactment this session but they hoped to get it in shape for next session.

Blocs were organized in both houses to bring about a vote on a sugar quota law to replace the expiring Jones-Costigan act. In the senate there were demands for action on anti-lynching legislation, which the house has passed.

Threat From Borah
President Roosevelt arranged to confer today with legislators from the sugar states in an effort to work out a bill which could be passed without too much delay. Senator Borah (R., Idaho), threatened to block all administration measures unless an agreement was reached.

Speaker Bankhead and Democratic leaders were expected to meet today.

TRAXLER GO BACK TO PRISON IN TEXAS

By The Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, July 29.—Extradition of Roy "Pete" Traxler to Texas to complete a 99-year armed robbery sentence was ordered today by Gov. E. W. Marland over protests of three Oklahoma county attorneys who sought to try the outlaw on similar charges in this state.

Traxler is in the McAlester prison, recovering from gunshot wounds.

He was wounded and his companion, Fred Tindol, also a fugitive from the Eastham, Tex., prison farm was slain by James Denton and Frank Trimmer, hostages, who seized the outlaws' own firearms.

DRIVERS MUST OBEY TRAFFIC RULINGS

The first of August will find Traffic Officer Herman Fischer and other police officers making a campaign to have all drivers in the city of Sedalia stop at the stop signs. Lately, Officer Fischer states, many have become careless, particularly where the signs are in outlying districts, and there is little traffic.

"It's a good thing to make a habit of obeying all traffic signals," said Officer Fischer, "then during such times as fair week, when there are many visiting motorists in the city, there is little danger of collisions caused by some one forgetting to stop, or to carry out some other regulation."

Officer Fischer, in commenting on the manner in which local motorists obey the traffic rules said he had little complaint to make, except for double parking, especially in the downtown districts. Too often, he said, Sedalians drive down town on Saturday, or sometime when there are many cars on the streets, stop for just a minute, run into a store and the minute runs into several. Consequently during that time cars have to go around the parked car, there is danger of scraping fenders on cars coming from the other direction and of more serious collisions.

He became King of Misr, Lord of Nubia and the Sudan and Sovereign of Kordofan and Barfour to the wild acclaim of 15,000,000 subjects and a display of fanfare and ritual within this ancient capital.

He vowed "by Almighty God to respect and obey the constitution and laws of the Egyptian people, safeguard our country's independence and defend its territory."

Shouts of "yehia el malek!"—"long live the king!"—throughout his land echoed the acclaim that broke out among the select assembly in the parliament building.

There is no crown of Egypt and the ceremony was an investiture rather than a coronation in the western sense. The suggestion that Farouk should be crowned with the 3,000-year-old diadem of Tut-Ankh-Amen had been overruled because the actual crowning of a king is not in accord with Islamic law.

Farouk is the first invested king of Egypt. His father, Faud the First, had changed the title from the traditional one of sultan to king.

The glory of ancient Egypt of the Pharaohs seemed reborn in Cairo and the magnificent maqas and nuwaw (parliament building) when the youthful monarch slowly intoned the words that consecrated him to the kingship and brought him to the full inheritance of 60 centuries of tradition.

Thousands Jam Streets
Thousands jammed Cairo's streets along the two-mile processional route from Ibn Palace to the parliament building.

The processional way was sanded underfoot and lined with flagpoles from which fluttered the green and white flag of Egypt. Burly Egyptian infantrymen held back the cheering crowds while Farouk, in the full dress uniform of a field marshal, rode by in his gilded state coach, drawn by six horses.

Farouk was accompanied by his premier, Mustapha El-Nahas Pasha. His uncle, Sheriff Sabry Pasha and Aziz Pasha Izzet, two of the three men who have ruled for him as a council of regency since his father died in April, last year, preceded Farouk in a bright red limousine.

Eight royal princes, cabinet ministers and presidents of the chamber and senate met the king when he stepped from the carriage at the entrance of the maqas. All within the chamber rose and bowed low as the monarch entered.

Farouk glanced at his mother, widowed Queen Nazli, then indicated with a slight wave of his hand that all could be seated. He took his seat on the throne in the center of a raised dais.

A hush fell over the assembly as Farouk rose and in a clear voice read the royal oath. The assemblage then rose, cheering, and the monarch resumed his seat. The reign of Farouk the First was officially under way.

A young man, still lacking his full majority under Egyptian law, had become ruler of a nation which only last year gained its independence under the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of alliance at the end of 55 years of British military occupation.

Concealed radio microphones carried Farouk's vow to the remotest village of his kingdom. At least one loudspeaker was installed in every center of population.

FAROUK IS FIRST INVESTED KING OF EGYPTIANS

Wild Acclaim at Cairo as Young Ruler Takes Seat on Throne

THOUSANDS ALONG PROCESSION ROUTE

Seemed as If The Glory of Ancient Egypt Had Been Reborn

By The Associated Press.
CAIRO, Egypt, July 29.—A stalwart, firm-chinned youth of 18. His Majesty Farouk the First, was invested today as the first king of an independent Egypt since the Mameluke rulers were conquered by Turkish hordes in the 16th century.

With a dignity far beyond his years, the husky-shouldered monarch took oath before his assembled chamber and senate.

He vowed "by Almighty God to respect and obey the constitution and laws of the Egyptian people, safeguard our country's independence and defend its territory."

Shouts of "yehia el malek!"—"long live the king!"—throughout his land echoed the acclaim that broke out among the select assembly in the parliament building.

HENRY FORD WILL BE 74 YEARS OLD FRIDAY, JULY 30

Auto Manufacturer Expresses Optimism For Industrial Year

By The Associated Press.
DETROIT, July 29.—Henry Ford will be 74 years old tomorrow but he plans no special observance of the occasion. He said today, however, that he is looking forward to a wedding anniversary eight months hence.

"I have never really celebrated a birthday," Ford explained. "I guess I never gave the occasion much thought. I always kept myself so busy with my work that I had very little time to celebrate."

"We'll save the celebration until Mrs. Ford's birthday next year," he added. They were married on her birthday 49 years ago.

Mrs. Ford's birthday is April 11. Ford, always an early riser, makes no exception of birthdays in that respect. Awake at 5 or 6 a. m., he is usually ready for breakfast before 7 a. m. and leaves soon afterward for his offices in the huge main plant of the Ford Motor Company.

In the interview, Ford expressed optimism for industry, predicted that the "present mess" would do the country "more good than most people expect," and observed that disillusionment can be an excellent teacher.

"I look forward to a great industrial year," the pioneer in mass production of automobiles said. "The present mess will do more good to the country than most people expect."

"By mess, I mean the mixing of backward politics, stupid business and labor exploitation that has been trying to hold up progress in this country."

"I believe that a great many people have been put in their places—people who have been led into strikes," he continued. "They believed in miracles and thought that things could be had by merely demanding them."

"But it will all work out. Improvements must be built—they cannot be talked into existence. Education will take care of that. People are learning by being disillusioned. False promises are failing and the people will iron out their problems."

Ford said moderate eating and plenty of rest kept him in good health. His diet is unrestricted.

LIEUT. P. W. CARAWAY LISTED AT TIENSIN

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 29.—Lieutenant Paul W. Caraway, son of Senator Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, was listed today by the state department as among the Americans at Tientsin, China, scene of an air raid and other fighting in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Caraway is attached to the 15th Infantry regiment but department records showed that on January 1, he and his wife, Ivel, lived outside the regimental barracks area.

A total of 223 military personnel and dependents and 403 civilians were registered by the Tientsin consulate general on that date. The total strength of his regiment on duty there is approximately 750 officers and men.

FIREMEN BURNED ARE RECUPERATING AT HOSPITAL

Sedalia's two firemen who were seriously burned in the Bard Jewelry store fire, Harry Stobel and Lloyd L. Gordy, are slowly recuperating at the Bothwell hospital. They are now able to sit up in wheel chairs, enjoy the hospital porches, and visit around in the hospital rooms. It will be some time before they will be able to leave the institution.

KIWANIS HEAR REPORT ON SCOUTS BIG JAMBOREE

William Milton Gives An Interesting Account of Encampment

VISITED NUMEROUS HISTORIC SPOTS

Next Week Club Members Will Visit Houstonia For Dinner Meeting

William Milton, son of Kiwanian Sam Milton, program chairman for the month, brought to a close his father's group of programs with a splendid report of the trip to Washington, D. C., by five Sedalia Boy Scouts. The program today noon at Hotel Bothwell also included a reading by Miss Zepora Wasserman which was brilliantly executed and greatly appreciated.

The Sedalia Scouts left Sedalia a week before the encampment for a pre-jamboree training at Jefferson City which included 20 Jefferson City Scouts and ten from Springfield, Mo.

At Washington there were 26,000 Scouts registered for ten days. A fire started by flint rocks by the aged pioneer of scouting in America, Daniel Beard, was struck and kept burning through the jamboree. Coals from the fire were preserved and carried to Holland where today the International Boy Scout Jamboree moves under way.

Four hundred Scouts representing 20 nations were the object of autograph seekers, as well as souvenir hunters at Washington and Scout Milton had his doubts whether they returned to their homes with any part of the original uniforms which they wore to America.

The Scouts visited the Lincoln Memorial, Smithsonian Institute and many places of interest. Scout Milton expressed his pleasure on being able to attend the session of congress on July 7 and hear addresses by Senators Guffey and Logan on the supreme court question which was so hotly debated on that day.

Greeted By President
He told of how the President, his cabinet members, as well as high military and naval officials greeted the Scouts, and of the important work that was done at the jamboree.

Returning to Missouri by way of Philadelphia and New York City, he told of the many historic and interesting places they visited.

Lee Shannon was the recipient of a large watermelon as a result of attendance stunt waged by Rev. L. M. Starke, attendance booster for the day. Guests present were Harry Milton, Clyde Brown and Kiwanian Rev. Emil Abele of Booneville, Mo.

A box of cigars was presented to the club members, the compliments of Miss Larry Lou Brill, newly arrived daughter of Kiwanian Larry Brill and wife.

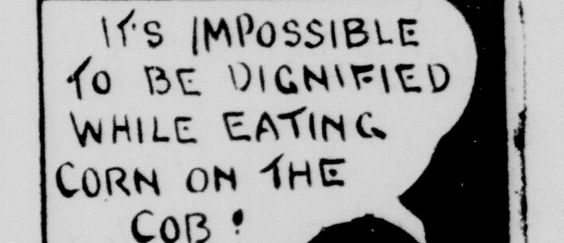

It was announced that next Tuesday or Wednesday night that the Sedalia Kiwanis club would journey to Houstonia, Mo., where they will have a joint dinner and program with the citizens of that community.

LONDON SALUTES THE ALAKE

The alake of Abeokuta must be a personage, for the flower of London society—dukes, earls, viscounts, barons, generals, admirals and their ladies—thronged a hotel when he entertained. In the latest Webster's dictionary appears to be no mention of an alake; this word, it seems to say, is a Scotch variant of alas, but this would not do for the alake of Abeokuta, which is in Nigeria (Webster's did include this in its gazetteer).

Americans, says the New York Herald Tribune, may be pardoned "if they have lived in ignorance of the location of Abeokuta and the title of its ruler, but the English know their alake. They know his importance in his mud-walled capital in Southern Nigeria, and they welcome him to Mayfair. The newspapers report his 'at home' as they would report and other social function. There is no evidence of surprise that the alake should entertain the world of fashion. No space is wasted in describing him. He is given place as one who belongs, and the mere fact of the reception is stated as an introduction to the glittering list of guests."

The English have their way of dealing with strange peoples who live under the Union Jack. They understand how to keep them in good temper. The alake and all other chiefs and chieftains are showered with attention when they visit London and their sons are welcomed to English schools and universities. The alake attended a cricket match in his regalia. He wore gorgeous robes and a glittering headpiece. A servant carried a much befringed umbrella over the alake's head—to protect him from the scorching English sun! Pictures of the alake at the match were reproduced in London newspapers.

The English know their alakes, and their akhunds, and their rajahs, and their maharajahs, and their gakhwars, and their agas, and all the rest of them. Official London does the thing in great style when these personages entertain or are entertained. The best is none too good for them. They are encouraged to wear their native costumes. They are made to feel that they are somebodies before whom the English wish to kowtow. One would like to know whether the dukes and the earls, the viscounts and the barons, the generals and the admirals, and their ladies know who the alake of Abeokuta was before he reached London and the word was passed that here was a personage who should be greeted and treated royally.

BARNUM'S BOYS

From the Ohio State Journal.

Perhaps Barnum was right in insisting that the public likes to be fooled. But it may also be expected that the desire to get something for nothing is part of the reason why so many persons are victimized.

At any rate, K. P. Aldrich, chief of postal sleuths and dean of federal sleuths, declares that annually the loot of schemers through the mails is one billion dollars. That is more, he says, than all the money and goods of which thieves avail themselves through robberies, stickups and burglary.

The government is constantly alert against postal swindlers and often catches up with them, but there are too many credulous persons and too many schemes for getting hold of their money.

ABOLISHING THE PUSH CART

Mayor LaGuardia, under a ten-gallon Texas cowboy hat conveyed to him by the mayor of San Antonio in recognition of some service or another, or as a gesture of good will, intends to rid New York of its pushcarts, many of them picturesque. Pushcarts are a nuisance in the modern scheme. They interfere with moving traffic. They use public streets as places of business.

The pushcart has been "weighed, measured and found wanting for lo-these many years and now, apparently, its fate is sealed," says the New York Times. "Its ancestry is ancient, for it is no more and no less than a booth picked out of a medieval fair and put on wheels; it is cousin to the country peddler and his outfit, that rolled or tramped the dusty roads a generation and more ago; in this and other cities it appeared toward the beginning of the Twentieth century.

"It did not, however, become a New York institution until the tides of immigration rose high as the century closed. For a few immigrants it gave jobs by which they earned the similitude of a living until they could do better; for many more it offered a sociable, colorful inexpensive market for almost everything they needed and could afford to buy. These pushcart markets became specialized; there our Italian, Jewish, Armenian, Chinese, Swedish, Czech and many other varieties of newcomers could find the foods they were used to, and the American no longer standing could experiment to his heart's—or stomach's—content."

JUST UNCOVER NEWS

From Nebraska City News Press.

Criticism is heard that the newspapers are not taking a strong enough stand in the current industrial strife whose flickering flame may break forth in red revolution at any moment.

One critic, ungrounded in the traditions are not asserting themselves; that news stories carry only bare facts.

That is what press associations are for. Neither Associated Press nor United Press is an editorial organization. Its business is to uncover the news, write the news through its reporters and correspondents, transmit the news to the newspapers which pay for it. Unbiased reporting is what makes the press associations accurate and reliable media of newsgathering.

HOME OF TODAY EFFICIENT

From Christian Science Monitor.

Visits to some of the hundreds of homes now under construction and inspection of the plans of others printed in current architectural publications make it obvious that designers of domiciles, enduring an enforced vacation during the recent construction stagnation, have successfully turned the occasion into the traditional "postman's holiday."

When the debacle of 1929 culminated in an almost complete cessation of home building and the song of the saw was heard but faintly in the land, the architect utilized his idle "T"-square and drawing board to develop, if not a new type of architecture, at least a new style of house plan which made up in ingenuity of design what it lacked in spaciousness. Economic exigency guided his pencil. Nonessentials were firmly eliminated. He resorted to the "6-room efficiency" of the apartment house, adopting and adapting devices which had been for some years an open secret in the world of architecture, but which none had thought, apparently, to employ in the designing of the small, detached home.

The dining room was done away with in favor of the breakfast nook, the resultant saving in space affording a more commodious living room where, on occasion, the formal meal could be served. The too-commodious kitchen, relic of a much earlier day when its clean-swept and spacious hearth was the center of family life, was transformed into a culinary laboratory of Pullman-like compactness.

The "Home, Sweet Home" of 1937 is not the rambling structure which inspired the words of the famous song, but convenience and livableness may make it equally popular and enduring.

LONG HITCHHIKE IN VAIN

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

It's pretty tough for a 15-year-old boy to hitchhike all the way from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to San Leandro, Calif., to see his big brother and find that he'd gone home.

Such was the story told Oakland juvenile authorities recently by Jesse F. Kernes, who said he left Council Bluffs nine days before without any money to see his brother, William, 19, who had written home he was working as dishwasher in a San Leandro restaurant.

Let Jesse tell it: "There's seven of us at home . . . Pa's on the WPA, and Bill wrote he had a swell job out here. So I said I wanted to come, and they said all right."

"Got a lot of rides, and worked for my meals. Got a little cold along the way, and an old lady gave me a coat she didn't need any more. In Cheyenne the cops picked me up as they said I mighta run away from home, but they let me go. The people where Bill worked said he left a week ago for home. Guess all I can do is go home again."

She heard the two men talking confidentially.

Sandy and Marcia met quite by accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has just established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist. Both are on vacation. A week later it's romance and love. When they go to tell Grandpa of their engagement, Marcia learns her office has been trying to reach her. Sandy's grandmother calls her to Los Angeles before telling her grandmother of their love. When Marcia insists on returning to her office—a trial advertising agency—at once, as a result of the phone call, Sandy leaves in a huff. Back in Los Angeles, Marcia is disappointed when Abe Zimbar, her employer, introduces her to Walt Hartley, his new partner. She herself had been led to believe she would be taken into the Hartley firm. She asks Marcia to dinner and, on the spur of the moment she accepts. They bump into Sandy who fails to conceal his jealousy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 10

IT WAS ONLY 8 o'clock when Hartley pulled his sleek black car to a halt before Marcia's apartment. The girl found it hard to be pleasant when she thought how unceremoniously he had dragged her away from the restaurant, and a possible reconciliation with Sandy. Then, in contrary mood, she resented Sandy's bitter attitude and wondered why he hadn't taken the initiative and carried her off for another glorious ride in his old gray car. She was content that their troubles would have vanished as they roared down the boulevard.

With disgust she looked at the expensive, long nosed car that was Hartley's, and compared it with the man himself. Black and sleek, powerful and commanding respect for his very costliness—and now purring softly as if in pleasure of the company it kept.

"I must go in," she said in sudden panic. "Work, you know. It was nice of you to bother, bringing me home and all." And before the man could anticipate it, she jumped from the car and slipped through the shadows.

"Well, I'll be a favorite name," he muttered softly to himself, looking out loud at the child-like directness she had exhibited in running away from a difficult situation.

For a minute he sat in the car, then with an impatient gesture he shifted it into gear and sped away. Marcia heard the exhaust popping, and smiled rather half-heartedly, thinking she had acted like an ingenue.

Hartley, she decided with a mental pout, had insinuating eyes. While he hadn't said a word to give her cause to mistrust him, she had a feeling that he wasn't the suave gentleman he appeared. Definitely, she decided against further associations with the man except in a strictly business way. Then thrusting all thoughts of men behind her, she put on a comfortable tweed skirt and short sleeved plumed-colored sweater and began to organize her work for the evening.

Happily, she set up her easel, focused the light on her satisfaction, and then sat down cross-legged on the floor to select pencils and water colors to experiment on her new assignment. Her weariness slipped from her like magic, and her face reflected the interest she felt in her work.

"Now for it," she decided, and began a systematic examination of the various Char-Ming preparations she had brought home. "Hm, nice goo," she remarked, smearing some of the "masque" upon her face. Carefully she read the directions, which prescribed complete relaxation while the beauty cream did its labor of love. Marcia always preface her work with as much practical experimentation as possible so that she could plan a direct and successful line of attack. Once she had accidentally dyed her hair green while faithfully "sampling" a client's hair tonic; again she had nearly died of moribundness while experimenting with black nail polish. Tonight she stretched herself out on the couch, religiously determined to give the Char-Ming face masque an opportunity to perform.

Suddenly, she heard soft foot steps and a hilarious, unrestrained laughter.

"For the love of all that's holy, what's this—are you practicing to be a mummy? Oh, you won't talk, eh? Well, that's lovely. Now maybe I'll have a chance to get in a few words."

It was Ellen Sanders, recently promoted to the post of chief manager at Acme and one of Marcia's best friends. Marcia sat bolt upright, but the hardening masque kept any vestige of a smile from showing on her stiffening countenance.

"Well, old Stonewall Madden. I just came over to see if I could help you on that Char-Ming business. Do you need another experimental station? I'd gladly be a guinea pig for you, and for Acme," she said, striking a pose.

In desperation Marcia grabbed a pencil and stalking over to her drawing board outlined the words. "This is the first time I've ever known you to be funny, and yet I can't laugh!"

A few minutes later she steamed her face in warm water, then, cold, and emerged shining and gay. Marcia appraised her friend anew as she stood in the dim light of her room that evening, looking decidedly younger than her 30 years. Not beautiful, she nevertheless had a poised and graciousness that was charming. At the office she was inclined to be a trifle austere, but in the friendly atmosphere of this room there was no hint of reserve. Marcia admired the creamy texture of her skin, so well set off by her gleaming black hair. From a beauty standpoint her nose was too reticent, but Marcia approved this one sign of rebellion in the otherwise too-perfect Ellen.

"It was grand of you to come, Ellen," Marcia offered her friend a cigarette before the two settled down to serious consultation.

"Now get off," commanded Marcia after an hour. "You need sleep, and I need to concentrate. Thanks for coming and goodbye."

After literally pushing her friend out the door, Marcia dabbed in other Char-Ming boxes, read the chemical analysis and typed literature Abe had included with the cosmetics. Seeing in her mind's eye the beautiful lotus-like skin of lovely Chinese ladies, she began to sketch aimlessly, then more definitely. Using the flower as a basis she developed a characteristic signature, then another. Feverishly, she experimented with colors and evolved a type of distinctive design which would mark a Char-Ming advertisement wherever it might appear.

Analyzing woman's age-old quest for beauty, she laid foundations for a psychological appeal to their vanity. Realizing that the copy required days of technical, even historical research, she left that for the future. The corner clock chimed 3 and she gathered together her sketches and brief notations, then sleepily fell into bed.

The next was the first of several busy days, when Abe and Marcia went over plans—the man eliminating and cutting where the ideas didn't appeal to his keen merchandising sense. A new girl was called in to help on copy in the emergency rush of business, and Marcia devoted her attention almost wholly to developing her art sketches. Relieved of much of the routine that had hampered her in the past, she found genuine pleasure in her work. Hartley occasionally ventured a suggestion, and was genuinely puzzled when Marcia resented his help. She still was suspicious of the new partner.

Dursting into Abe's office one afternoon, she heard the two men talking confidentially. "His name is Knight, and he's in charge of new branch office. But he hasn't a chance to get this Char-Ming account away from us. We've got old Thornton sewed up."

Quietly she backed out, then went hastily into Ellen's cubicle. "I'm in a fix," she confided, not taking time to think. Hurriedly she outlined her love for Sandy and his ambitions. "Now he's trying for this account, and it must mean so much to him. He hasn't a ghost of a chance, unless he knows what he's up against. Why, with the money Acme is spending for a presentation he'd have to submit something terrific to have a look-in. What'd I do, Ellen—talk to him?"

"Just off hand I'd say your loyalty was to Abe, Marcia. After all, he's paying your salary, and you owe him something." Ellen used cold logic to convince Marcia of her obligations, even though she sympathized with her feelings.

That night, Sandy stopped at Marcia's apartment as casually as if there had been no misunderstanding. His only reference to the rift was an embarrassed, "Let's start over again, Marcia. I'll try to understand your side of it."

Almost immediately he launched enthusiastically into his plans to land the Char-Ming account. Without the financial backing or the inside contact his simple plan had no chance for success and Marcia but her tongue to keep their relationship on a business basis. Her seeming approval acted as a boomerang a few minutes later when she made a slip revealing that she was working on the same prospect.

"And you never told me. Let me go on bragging like a kid about my plans, when already you—Say, maybe you wanted me to talk so you'd know what you have to compete with." Again Sandy let his hurt get the better of him, and flared up. "You career women are all alike. Selfish and unscrupulous. You'd scalp your own grandmother if it would help you get ahead."

"Oh, Sandy," Marcia said bitterly, too tired to combat this continual distrust. What use to tell him she had kept silent out of a feeling of loyalty, if he had not more loyalty to her than that. "You'd better go," she said and shook her head when he would say. Gently she pushed him toward the door, then closed it wearily behind him.

(To Be Continued)

WASHINGTON—You hear a lot of talk around Capitol lobbies that the Supreme Court fight is over, and everything is now love and kisses in the Democratic Party.

But don't be deceived by those kisses. There may be a temporary lull in the battle, but it will be very temporary.

The real issue today is: Will the Roosevelt program go on?

In four years he has put through a program more radical than any other President since Lincoln, and it is no secret that to many of his party leaders that program has been just as bitter medicine as the program of Lincoln was to their forebearers.

The Roosevelt program, so far, has been whipped through by the scourge of depression and by overwhelming popular demand. But now the depression is over, public opinion is more complacent, and Roosevelt has suddenly suffered a smashing defeat.

White House advisers are putting out the story that the defeat was neither significant nor important. But they are whistling in their beads. Real fact is that Roosevelt was given a crushing blow, and given it not by Republicans, but members of his own party.

Growing Split

Those same members now face issues to which they secretly object just as vigorously as they did to the court plan—perhaps more so.

Look over the important bills earmarked for action before adjournment. They get down to the roots of traditional opposition within Roosevelt's own party.

There is the wages and hours bill, which puts the Negro of the South on the same economic plane—as far as wages go—with white labor. In the opinion of some people it completes—from economic viewpoint—the emancipation which Lincoln started. There is potent, deep-rooted opposition to this bill on the part of many Democratic Congressmen, but it is a "must" measure on the program of their leader.

There is also the housing bill by which, for the first time, the Government reaches down into the slums with its own money and builds tenements to compete with private real estate. Not only are the real estate operators opposed, but also the agricultural areas which get no benefit.

Dodge Roosevelt

All the talk about adjournment because of fatigue and hot weather is bunk. Real reason is the desire to dodge the Roosevelt program.

Hostile Democrats have tasted blood and may get away with it this time. They may even continue to get away with it. But if they do, it means the real culmination of the long-talked-of split within the Democratic Party.

Roosevelt is an adroit leader. He will soft-soap and wiserack. He can dodge and sometimes retreat. But in this case the old Dutch is up, and you can write it down in the book that he is in for a knock-down-and-drag-out fight to the finish with the Democratic Old Guard.

Post Mortem

Post mortems are dreary, but in the case of the Supreme Court fight there are some significant lessons to be gained from reviewing the strategy by which the President lost it.

There were, of course, the already known facts that he muffed the first play by not taking Senators into his confidence, also by letting Attorney General Cummings get him off on such wrong steers as old age and crowded court dockets as the excuse for reorganization. Important also is the fact that Roosevelt was overconfident, went fishing instead of fighting. He let his opponents drag out the battle until Chief Justice Hughes could spring some favorable decisions.

It was after the Wagner Act decision, upholding the New Deal, that unwritten history took place which had an all-important bearing on the fight.

At that time Roosevelt indicated privately his willingness to accept a compromise. He wanted to scrap the six-judge increase for a two-judge increase. This would create a Supreme Court of eleven justices, one each for the eleven judicial circuits of the United States.

But Joe Robinson opposed. Reason was that by some quirk of gerrymandering, Arkansas (Joe's State) is in the eighth circuit with Minnesota. But since Minnesota already has a man on the bench—Justice Butler—the plan of appointing a judge for each circuit would not have helped Joe at all. To get his Supreme Court appointment he would have had to wait for Justice Butler to die or retire.

So Robinson turned thumbs down and went into a sulky.

But shortly after the resignation of Justice Van Devanter, Joe galvanized into action. Reason was that Roosevelt conveyed to him the idea that while he, Robinson, could not be appointed as a lone judge, he could be appointed among a panel of several younger men.

Robinson and Garner

Joe Robinson was a great leader, and from that point on he put his heart and soul into the fight. Had he lived, Roosevelt would have won.

Joe's death gave Jack Garner the opportunity to return and assume command in the Senate. Last July, when Roosevelt and Garner accepted their nominations at the Philadelphia Convention, Jack looked up at the stars and swore to follow his "leader" wherever he might lead. But by the time he arrived in Washington after the Robinson funeral, Jack had relegated that oath to the limbo of politicians' promises.

For, when he talked to the President just after his arrival, Garner said that a compromise was possible. But to Senator Burt Wheeler, leader of the opposition, he sang another song. He told Burt to "write his own ticket." Also he inspired seven wabbling Democrats to go down to the White House and tell the President they would vote against him.

At this point Roosevelt surrendered. Today some very harsh words about the Vice President are heard around the White House.

Peace Restored To Peiping and Environs Suddenly Tonight

rons set many of Tientsin's principal buildings afire, particularly the railroad center, and burned the international bridge connecting the foreign concessions and the Chinese city.

Bombs rained on densely populated Chinese quarters. One village, on Tientsin's outskirts, was an inferno.

Americans in Cellars

Both at Tientsin and Peiping, Americans huddled in the cellars of the foreign concessions and swarmed for safety in embassy compounds, spurred to shelter by memories of the wave of foreign slayings during the Boxer rebellion in 1900.

American commercial investments in the area total about $25,000,000, mostly in Tientsin. In Washington, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said a wholesale evacuation of Americans would be undertaken only in a grave emergency.

Three Chinese armies—The 26th, 29th and 40th—attacked in concert to gain the strategic Tientsin area and cut Japanese communications with the interior.

Striking at Japanese entrenchments along a 95-mile front, the Chinese carried out their offensive from Tientsin, Tientsin's port 20 miles to the east, to Fengtai, Japanese field headquarters west of Peiping.

The attack was sudden, swift and strong. It drove the Japanese from Tientsin's three key railroad stations and the Japanese concession, precipitating furious Japanese aerial and artillery bombardment of the city.

Withdraw From Peiping

The 37th division of the 29th army mysteriously withdrew from Peiping, where all but 15 of the 675 American residents were quartered in emergency encampments behind the embassy compound gates.

Not a Chinese soldier remained within the former capital or its environs. Peiping's lacework of barricades was ripped down and newly-dug trenches in the main streets filled in.

One report ascribed the withdrawal to a pre-arranged Sino-Japanese understanding to end the crisis without loss of face. Another suggested the 37th division had made a strategic retreat to join the main Chinese forces toward Tientsin.

Chinese newspapers at Shanghai, angered by the sudden collapse of Chinese resistance at Peiping, accused leaders of a "coup d'etat" which betrayed the nation. Unconfirmed reports said a "peace conference" was under way.

Chinese shore batteries opened fire on Japanese destroyers off Tientsin, Tientsin's port. The Japanese naval force shelled the port city and land forces attempted to silence the Chinese batteries.

Japanese war planes scouted the Chinese coast. Chinese sources said seven Japanese warships were seen in the Formosan Straits.

General Gen Sugiyama, Japanese war minister, intimated to the parliament in Tokyo that a clash might come with the central Chinese army and that the conflict might spread beyond North China.

Reinforcements To China

Wholesale reinforcements were being dispatched to China and the lower house passed legislation revising conscription and extending military secrets protection laws.

In Tientsin, the principal buildings of the gateway city to North China, including famous Nankai University, the central railway station and the militia headquarters, were in flames, fired by bombs dropped by the Japanese warplanes. The Chinkiang international bridge connecting the foreign concessions and the Chinese city was ablaze.

Chinese and Japanese troops were locked literally in a death struggle, fighting hand-to-hand in the streets with their entrenchments at places less than one hundred feet apart.

At mid-afternoon Japanese warplanes began bombing the Chinese positions throughout the city without regard for the safety of the foreign areas and the Americans and other foreign residents there.

"The seriousness of situation," the Japanese command frankly admitted, "has compelled the Japanese army to attack the Chinese positions despite earlier assurances it would not expose the city's foreign residents to peril."

The quarters most densely populated with Chinese were subjected to the heaviest bombardment. The general air attack commenced at 2 p. m. and two minutes later the first flames began licking skyward from a Chinese village near the Japanese airfield which had been captured and is still being held by Chinese.

In a short while the entire village was a holocaust. The Japanese declaration of policy said they were "regretfully forced by the Chinese troop concentrations and actions to resort to this most drastic measure."

The declaration that the Chinese concentrations were a flagrant violation of the Boxer protocol of 1901 and other agreements granting extra territorial rights to Japan and other powers.

The first target of the Japanese air raiders in the city was the huge administration buildings of the Peiping-Mukden railroad.

Bombers Fire Station

The great bombers dropped low, dropping their projectiles, then, majestically circling, they came again and again bombing new targets each time. Soon the Eastern Railway station was enveloped in flames and only a few moments later Tientsin's city hall was blasted afire.

The air attack was the signal for Japanese ground forces to drive against the Chinese concentrations at barricades in widely separated sections of the city. Artillery was rushed into place and both sides began shelling.

From their emplacements near Nankai University the Chinese artillery hurled salvo after salvo of projectiles into the heart of the Japanese concession.

Known foreign casualties in the street fighting up to mid-afternoon were one French colonial soldier and one Italian soldier killed and a Chinese officer of the British constabulary wounded.

Chinese reported that the Japanese troops were being thrown back on numerous fronts within and on the outskirts of the city. Twenty miles to the east at the twin port cities of Taku and Tangku Japanese were reported fighting desperately to retain the positions that protect the landings of their troops and supplies from Japan and Korea.

The Chinese 26th, 29th and 40th armies attacked in concert to gain the strategic Tientsin area and at the same time cut Japanese communications with the interior. Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, the so-called "Christian General," was reported to have planned and executed the drive from headquarters he had set up at Changshingien, just across the Yungting river from Peiping.

The 37th division of the 29th army suddenly withdrew from Peiping, where it has been challenging Japanese advance, and was reported this morning to have made a successful spearhead thrust at Fengtai, the Japanese field headquarters, five miles to the west. The strategic railway station of Langfang, midway from Peiping to Tientsin and Peking, seven miles north of Tientsin, were said to have fallen to their units of the 29th army.

Simultaneously the Chinese 26th and 40th armies, attacked the Japanese positions at Tientsin's three railway stations, the Japanese barracks and airfield.

Many of the units of the two armies which are based in Paoingfu, some 70 miles west of Tientsin, had slipped into the area individually, dressed in civilian clothes. They were in place in the Japanese concession when the signal for the attack was given.

Concentrating rapidly on designated positions they disrupted the Japanese morale by a sniping and hand grenade attack on the Japanese almost from within the enemy's ranks.

So surprising and so vicious was the Chinese attack on the railway stations that the Japanese fell back almost without firing a shot. Many of the Japanese even turned and ran across the international bridge.

International guards immediately threw up barricades of sandbags and barbed wire and manned machine guns behind them to protect residents of the foreign concession. The foreign troops number over 5,000, including 600 soldiers of the 15th United States infantry, 500 British Lancashire fusiliers, 1200 French colonialists and 2400 Italian marines. Supporting the regulars are 120 British volunteers. Americans have been organized into defense units and have been drilling for days.

Reject Any Interference

TOKYO, July 29.—Koki Hirota, Japan's foreign minister, told the diet today the government would summarily reject any "interference" by a third power in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

He said he trusted no outside power would enter the dispute.

Japanese newspapers, repeatedly attacked foreign intervention in Asiatic affairs. They recalled that Japan never recovered face after France, Russia and Germany offered "friendly advice" in the first Sino-Japanese war, 41 years ago.

Japan, at that time, was forced to return the Liaoting peninsula, ceded by China in the Shimonezaki peace treaty.

War Minister General Gen Sugiyama told the diet it was "easy to clear the Chinese troops from the Peiping and Tientsin areas, but what is far more important is the clash with the central Chinese army which may follow."

In any event, he added, "Japan is prepared to meet all possibilities."

The war minister's statement was interpreted as meaning the war office had secret information indicating it would be difficult to keep the Chinese war confined to the north.

Wholesale reinforcements were being dispatched to China to meet the gravest of eventualities. The lower house of parliament passed without change bills that revised the conscription and military secrets protection laws and made a $30,000,000 appropriation for the North China hostilities.

The military secrets measure will give the army censor absolute power over all information, even such things as almanacs and industrial statistics. It is designed to prevent "economic espionage." The conscription bill empowers the war minister to modify qualifications for army and navy recruits.

Get "Certain Assurances"

LONDON, July 29.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told commons today that Great Britain had made representations to Japan about the safety of British subjects in China and that it had received "certain assurances."

Accused of Betrayal

SHANGHAI, July 29.—Angered by the reported sudden end of Chinese resistance to Japanese at Peiping, Chinese newspapers today accused leaders of a "coup d'etat" which betrayed the nation.

Some of the papers said resistance collapsed as a result of the revolt of a Chinese detachment in the north," and declared "unexplained" the departure of Sung-Yuan, 29th army commander, Chin Teh-Chun, mayor of Peiping, and other chiefs.

Unconfirmed reports from Peiping said a Sino-Japanese "peace conference" was under way.

No Reports of Americans Injured

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP)—Consul John K. Caldwell reported to the state department today that so far as he knew no Americans yet had been injured in the fighting in Tientsin.

His message said Americans in danger areas are being advised to move into official concessions and that they were being aided in finding places of safety.

Make Attempt To Pass Some Of Chief Measures

eratic Leader Barkley of the senate left the White House as darkness was falling yesterday, but gave out little new information.

Back of the wage-hour, housing and court bills they listed a group of measures on which they said they hoped to obtain action, including the sugar bill, legislation to plug tax loopholes, and crop insurance.

In a highly doubted category they placed government reorganization and general farm legislation. The house agriculture committee decided yesterday to defer the farm bill until next year.

The senate was called into session and hour early, a customary indication of approaching adjournment.

Tentatively, Barkley said, it was the intention to take up the new court bill after the housing measure. There was "other legislation" in prospect, he said, but he was not ready to outline the program further in detail.

Hope For Vote Today

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Senator George (D-Ga.) told the Senate today that standards provided in the administration's wage-hour bill were "poetry and nothing but poetry."

George, opening a southern Democratic attack on the measure, criticized powers proposed in the bill for a wage-hour board, the organization of the board, and authority given the board to use information compiled by the secretary of labor.

Senator Austin (R-Vt.), who preceded George said the bill—the Black Connery measure—would put a strait jacket on labor and mean an economic loss for agriculture.

Despite this double-barrelled attack from opposite sides of the chamber, leaders hoped for a vote late today. A serious threat to quick action was removed when Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) decided not to press amendments increasing the responsibility of labor in industrial disputes.

"One thing is very clear," George said, his rich voice roaring through the chamber. "The present secretary of labor does not believe in any differential between sections of the country."

"If any differentials are to be allowed, they are inconsequential and wholly inadequate to preserve the great system of agriculture that has grown up under competitive conditions."

INNOCENT PLEA IN STRANGLING CASE

NEW YORK, July 29.—While the husband of the woman he allegedly killed sobbed hysterically, Stanley A. Martin, Jr., 29, pleaded innocent today and was held without bail on a charge of strangling Mrs. Florence Jackson, 39, mother of two small children.

The husband, Bert Jackson, 39, Wall Street stock trader, broke down and wept as Martin, pale-faced and shaking, automatically mumbled his plea of innocence to the homicide charge.

The plea, requisite under New York state law, contrasted with Martin's previous alleged confession that he garroted Mrs. Jackson, "because she asked me to."

Earlier the story of a projected "lovers' death leap" from the skies, as the way out of their hopeless illicit romance, entered the case.

Speed Hanzlik, New York aviator, said he was positive Mrs. Jackson and Martin were the passengers he took on a flight over Long Island last Thursday.

Hanzlik said Martin talked excitedly with the woman, during the flight, and three times opened the door of the plane with Mrs. Jackson at his side, as though they contemplated leaping to their death.

Following his arrest Tuesday, Martin told police that after garrotting Mrs. Jackson, the mother of two children, he "sobered up" and lost his nerve on a plan to kill himself by driving the murder car over the side of a bridge.

Petitions a Divorce

A divorce petition was filed in the circuit court today by Ivan Hopkins against Clytie Hopkins, to whom, the petition states, he was married August 25, 1929. The petition alleges that August 23, 1936, the defendant left him and went to the state of California and has failed to return.

The plaintiff states they have one child, now in the custody of Mrs. Hopkins' mother, Mrs. W. C. Acock. He asks the court to permit her to remain in her grand-mother's care and he will maintain and support her.

E. W. Jones is attorney for the plaintiff.

LONG LITIGATION IS NEARING END

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 29.—Fourteen years of litigation over a $10,500,000 claim of Edward F. Goltra against the federal government neared its conclusion today.

The case will be submitted to the federal court of claims for a verdict soon, U. S. Commissioner C. W. Ramseyer of the U. S. court of claims said at a special session for concluding testimony.

Goltra, former national Democratic committeeman, began suit after the seizure in 1923 of 21 river boats now operated as the federal barge lines, which he had leased. Testimony has been taken in New York, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Los Angeles.

Roller was the first wounded. He had gone to the vicinity alone seeking a man who had been terrifying housewives in the neighborhood for the past two weeks by demanding food at the point of a 20-gauge shotgun.

He found the suspect and demanded that he "stop." "It's your turn to stop," the man is quoted as having replied and fired without further warning, the full charge of the gun taking effect in Roller's thigh.

The wounded man was taken to the Cassville hospital and the sheriff's office notified. A group of officers, with Blankenship driving, went to the scene in a motor car.

At a point about a mile from where Roller was wounded, Blankenship and Deputy Sheriff Vern Erwin sighted the man and called to other officers a short distance away. As they did so the man fired, the full charge of his shotgun taking effect in Blankenship's left shoulder. He also was taken to the Cassville hospital while other officers started pursuit of the fugitive. They abandoned the search at dark.

Peiping May Be A Hard Nut to Crack

By a Member of the Sedalia Democrat and Capital Staff

The center stage in China's theater of war, Peiping, known as the walled city, is well named and may prove a hard nut for the Japanese army to crack.

The outer wall enclosing some two million Chinese, Americans, Japanese, Italians, English and representatives from nearly every nation, is some sixty feet high and 25 feet wide and has only four entrances, a gate at each corner of the huge square city.

The massive gates of the old capital of China where the legations of all nations are located, are of heavy wood nearly a foot thick and thirty feet high and require the strength of eight men to open and close. But this is not all. Should the Japanese manage to raid the first great door they would be confronted with a second—just as strong and surrounded by a wall where Chinese may fire from four directions at their attackers attempting to batter in the door.

If again the Japanese manage to force the second door they are faced by a third huge and well fortified wall. To reach the heart of Peiping, seven great walls must be captured for the walled city is enclosed in a series of seven structure, each within the other. These, however, do not include the walls which enclose each home, property, buildings and block in Peiping together with the wall surrounding the American legation and those of other nations.

Peiping, the walled city which can be turned into a continuous series of fortifications may prove a big factor in protecting the former capital of one of the oldest civilizations in the world.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MISS MARY ROSS WEDS ORVAL LANE

The marriage of Miss Mary Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ross, south of La Monte, and Orval Lane of Velma, Neb., took place Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at the home of the Rev. Father J. A. Brier in Warrensburg.

The bride's sister, Miss Margaret Ross, and brother, Royal Ross, were the attendants. The only guests were the immediate Ross family. After the ceremony the couple left for a honeymoon trip to the Pacific coast, after which they will go to housekeeping in Velma, Neb., where Mr. Lane is a teacher in the grade schools.

ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED SUNDAY

A host of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Bush Sunday to help them celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. A bountiful dinner was spread to which all contributed. In the center of the table was a wedding cake presented by Mrs. Bush's sister, Mrs. Laura Kisel. The day was enjoyed with music and conversation.

Those present were as follows: Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Bandy, Rev. and Mrs. Jake Spencer and family; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckhoff, Mrs. Laura Kisel, Mrs. Lena English and daughter, Flossie; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. R. Mabry and son, Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kesemann and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Poe Bush and son; Mr. and Mrs. Calbert Bush and family; Mr. and Mrs. Willie Robinson and daughter, Lorene; Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Brown and daughter, Woodan; Grover Mabry, Herbert Spencer and Joe Caffie.

Eighty-Nine Years Old

Mrs. J. W. Goodin will celebrate her eighty-ninth birthday Saturday, July 31st, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. B. D. Payton, west of Sedalia. Mrs. Payton will keep "open house" for her mother's friends from 2 to 6 in the afternoon and after 7:30 o'clock Saturday night.

Mrs. Goodin, still hale and hearty at her advanced age, has five children, Mrs. A. W. Cooper, San Antonio, Tex.; Mrs. R. K. Parker, Delhi, La.; J. B. Goodin, Alberta, Canada; A. C. Goodin, Walker, Mo.; and Mrs. Payton. She will be the only one of them at the celebration.

ROUND-UP MADE OF ALLEY PROWLERS

The alley prowlers round-up goes on by the police department. In recent weeks small groups of boys have been taken to police headquarters and lectured about loafing in the alleys, but this morning broke all records. Fifteen boys were picked up at one time and hauled into the office of John J. O'Brien, chief of police.

Most of the group, eleven colored boys and four white, were scraping old ice-cream cans behind the Meadow Gold Ice Cream plant, others were picking up old fudge-cycle wrappers, and still others were picking up junk, old rags, and other articles.

Warning seats at police headquarters for more than two hours, the boys were lectured by Chief O'Brien, and upon their promise to remain out of the alleys were released. Many of the group have been picked up as many as four and five times, the officers said.

Chief O'Brien in talking with the boys told them they would be taken before Mrs. Claude Brown, welfare officer, should they give the police any more trouble.

RABBI AND MRS. FRIEDMAN ON TRIP

Rabbi and Mrs. Newton J. Friedman of Gloversville, N. Y., formerly of Sedalia, left their home this morning for a delightful trip in the northeastern part of the country, according to a letter from Mrs. Friedman to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Kanter of Dal-Whi-Mo court.

They will sail on the Duchess of Atholl for Halifax, Nova Scotia, then go northward to the St. Lawrence Sea Way and to Quebec and Montreal.

Rabbi Friedman is in charge of the Jewish Community Center at Fulton County, N. Y., and is very successful and happy in his work. He receives splendid assistance from Mrs. Friedman, formerly Miss Rosalie Kanter of this city, who is a talented musician and prior to her marriage had been engaged in social service work.

DISMISS ACTION OF MILLING COMPANY

By The Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, July 29.—A federal court action to enjoin the national labor relations board from interfering with the Majestic Flour Mills at Aurora, Mo., was dismissed here this week, ending more than 18 months of litigation.

George O. Pratt, regional director for the labor board, said today flour mill officials asked the dismissal before Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis.

Judge Otis granted a temporary injunction against the board in December, 1933, holding the national labor relations act unconstitutional after the board had charged the milling company with unfair labor practices. In October, 1936, the circuit court upheld Judge Otis's ruling. Since that time, however, the United States supreme court upheld constitutionality of the act, necessitating the dismissal action this week.

"The labor board is now considering what action it will take on the original complaint," Pratt said.

FARMER CONFESSES WIFE POISONING

By The Associated Press.
MARSHALL, Ark., July 29.—The Searcy county sheriff reported today that Hollis Ray, 58-year-old farmer and timber buyer recently charged with murder after the sudden death of his wife, had confessed to poisoning Mrs. Ray.

"He said he just wanted to get it off his chest," Sheriff Oscar Barnett announced. "No motive was mentioned and he refused to discuss that."

Mrs. Ray died July 21, apparently from indigestion. Sheriff Barnett said Ray recently spent much time in North Carolina and his investigation showed Ray had corresponded with a young woman in that state after his return here.

GREAT BRITAIN IN SEA-POWER LEAD

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 29.—A navy department tabulation of the world's sea-power disclosed Great Britain was far ahead of other nations.

The British navy now consists of 285 warships of 1,216,398 tons, the figure showed. It has under construction 96 more ships of 541,000 tons.

The United States navy is second. It has 325 ships of 1,083,330 tons (including 212 wartime vessels of 214,100 tons considered over-age). Eighty-seven ships of 335,565 tons are under construction.

The other sea powers in order rank: Japan, 200 ships of 745,604 tons, and 23 ships of 79,272 tons under construction; France, 162 ships of 469,346 tons, and 42 of 174,143 tons under construction; Italy, 206 ships of 296,683 tons, and 67 of 147,600 tons under construction, and Germany, 77 ships of 147,632 tons and 38 of 262,482 tons under construction.

Navy officials said the figures for Japan, Italy and Germany might not be complete.

PLANNING THE LEFT-OVERS

(By Martha Logan)

There comes a time even in the hottest August when the weather man has a change of heart and slips in a cool rainy day. Then is the time to order a big roast and have a change from the ready-to-serve and short order meals we have been serving. Whether it is an oven-baked rib roast or a rump, round, or shoulder pot roast, be sure to buy generously so there will be left-overs to form the starting point for two or three other dinners.

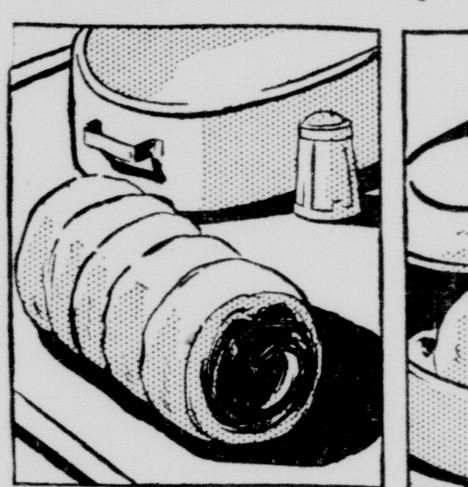

If on the next day the sun shines out in all its glory, the cold sliced roast with a mixed vegetable salad will be welcomed, or perhaps you prefer to heat slices of the roast in gravy and serve on toast with a boiled tomato garnish.

There are many ways of using up the less easily sliced pieces of roast. Perhaps the casserole is the most ideally suited to left-over meat cookery. Many primitive people have used a form of casserole for cooking, but in recent years the casserole has become fashionable.

Behold the lovely colored glazed pots for individual service of meat pies bubbling up below tempting brown biscuit dough crusts. There are the interesting brown Mexican cookers with the long handles. In such a casserole, you can imagine the sliced left-over roast reposing in a pool of spicy tomato and green pepper sauce with a layer of brown-

Martha Logan Says

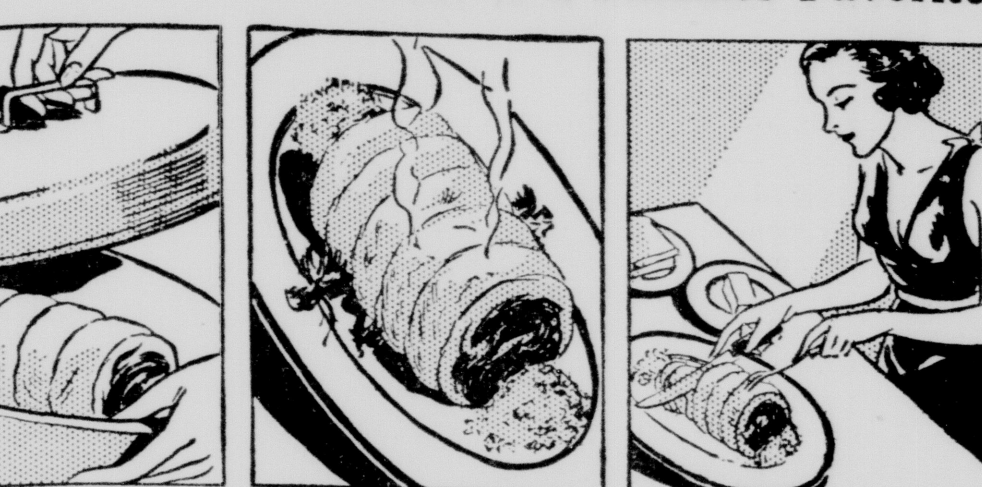

We checked over our dinner menus the other day and discovered we haven't been using enough veal.

This delicately flavored meat is especially well suited to summer dinners and it combines so well with any of the seasonal vegetables.

Breaded veal steak or a good leg or loin roast of veal is always welcome. Veal is an especially good buy in the market now because high quality brands are available at prices that will please you.

Veal Is a Summer Favorite

Roast veal is one of those versatile meats that is delicious served hot or cold. The leftovers make a meat pie, a creamed dish, sandwiches, or salads. There's no need to worry about using up the roast veal at our house. It never lasts long enough.

A veal roast may be cooked in an uncovered pan, but we prefer to cover the veal because we think it gives a juicier product. It is important, however, to roast slowly at a low temperature—about 300° F.

A rolled veal shoulder is a most satisfactory cut. Have the butcher bone, roll, and tie a shoulder roast. A thin layer of back fat fastened around the roast adds flavor. Place the roast on a rack. Season. Cover or not, according to preference. Bake slowly allowing 30 minutes to the pound. Serve with Spanish Rice.

ed rice as a bed and topping.

Macaroni, spaghetti, rice, potatoes, and toast—are all good "stretchers" to make the last bits of roast into a main dish for another meal. The ground pieces of roast, browned with a little chopped onion and green pepper can be combined with a brown or tomato sauce. This makes a delicious topping for mounds of rice or hot golden brown toast. Or—if you prefer—get out the casserole, butter it and combine the meat sauce with cooked spaghetti, macaroni and rice. Pour into the casserole and a half-hour before meal time, pop it into a hot oven to heat and brown.

Meat croquettes are easily made from ground meat, bread crumbs, and egg. Canned mushroom or tomato soup may be used as a binder. If you have a kettle of deep fat, croquettes are quickly browned in the hot fat. Or they may be made patty shape and baked in the oven or pan fried.

Meat salads? Of course. Cubes of left-over roast may be combined with cold cooked peas, or string beans, diced celery, cucumbers and the inevitable bit of onion. To bring out the best in a meat salad, marinate the mixed ingredients for an hour or so in French dressing. And be sure it's cold! At serving time, make a nest of lettuce on a platter. Fill with meat salad. Top with mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Garnish with pickled beets and serve with a bowl of potato chips and a plate of hard rolls. That's a hot weather dinner that satisfies.

To produce a good roast requires careful observance of rules, but to create a flavorful left-over dish requires culinary imagination and skill.

FAMOUS QUINS GAIN WEIGHT ON QUAKER OATS

"No fair standing on your toes." That's what Dr. Dafoe tells the famous Dionne Quins as he measures them to see which is the tallest. Annette and Yvonne, who border on three feet are tied for first place. The other three little girls are close contenders, however.

Of all the Quins, Marie's height record is the most interesting. In January, 1935, Marie was reported as being 24 inches tall. By the end of the year she had grown five inches. The following year, 1936, she had gained 3½ inches, reaching the new "high" of 32½ inches. In one month alone, January, 1937, Marie gained a full inch.

So Marie, and her little sisters are adding inch upon inch to their height. But then, the famous Dionne Quins are bound to be healthy since they eat Quaker Oats every day.

The Quins' medical advisors certainly knew what they were doing when out of all the cereals in the world they chose Quaker Oats as the Dionne Quins' cereal. For Quaker Oats is rich in Vitamin B for bracing up nerves, digestion and appetite. And Quaker Oats with milk is a wonderful source of body-building minerals, food-energy and muscle-building protein. Those sturdy, healthy little youngsters in Canada are setting good examples for people all over the world. For Quaker Oats, the Dionne Quins' cereal, is good for young and old alike.

Salad of Greens
Black Raspberry Fluff Cake Tea

Cheese is a good substitute for meat, and a cheese souffle is a delicious dish, and not hard for even the inexperienced to make.

Today's Recipes
CHEESE SOUFFLE—Two table-spoons butter, one heaping table-spoon flour, three eggs, one-half cup milk, one cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, speck of cayenne. Put butter in saucepan, and when hot, but not brown, add flour and stir until smooth. Add milk and seasoning, cook two minutes, add wellbeaten yolks and cheese. Cool. When cold, add wellbeaten whites. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake about 20 minutes in rather quick oven. Serve immediately. Serves four.

Today's Recipes
ECONOMY DATE BREAD—One package dates, cut fine; one tea-spoon soda, one cup boiling water, one cup dark brown sugar, one tablespoon (generous) shortening, one teaspoon vanilla, two cups flour. Pour boiling water with soda over dates and shortening. When cool add other ingredients in order and beat well.

CHOCOLATE CAKE—One tea-spoon vanilla, four squares chocolate; one and one-half cups sugar, one and three-fourths cups milk, one-half cup shortening, two eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon baking soda, three-fourths baking powder, two cups cake flour. The best results are obtained when the ingredients are mixed in the following way: Put the four squares of chocolate and one-half cup of the sugar with three-fourths cup of the milk in a saucepan and cook until it is smooth and creamy. Let that mixture cool. Now cream one-half cup of shortening with one cup of sugar. Add the yolks of two eggs beaten until light. Sift the cake flour with salt, baking soda and baking powder. Add to mixture alternately with the left-over cup of milk, beating well between each addition. Now add the chocolate mixture and beat again. Flavor with vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two layers at 350 degrees.

MARSHMALLOW FROSTING—One-fourth pound marshmallows, one-fourth cup irradiated evaporated milk, one pound confectioners' sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Melt marshmallows with milk over boiling water. Add sugar. More milk may be needed. Stir to blend thoroughly, remove from heat and add vanilla. In this recipe, undiluted irradiated evaporated milk, soured with lemon juice, provides all the essentials of sour cream in producing cake of exquisite texture, moistness and excellent keeping qualities. The lemon juice also imparts delicate flavor to this cake.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

MEAT prices are again rising. Best values in meat are to be found in forequarter cuts of lamb, veal and beef, in that order. Eggs and cheese are excellent choices. It is the exceptional vegetable now which does not fall in the cheap or reasonable class. Outstanding values are to be found in salad greens and vegetables, particularly lettuce, tomatoes, celery, cucumbers and green peppers. New apples are more plentiful, plums are cheap and abundant. Plentiful supplies of peaches and Bartlett pears are promised for the near future. The following meals may be eaten either outdoors or in.

BOOSTER-ROSENTHAL CLASH TO HEADLINE A THREE-GAME CARD

Two attractive preliminary games have been arranged for the softball program at Liberty Park Friday night when the Boosters and the Rosenthals resume their playoff for the National Division championship. Coach Donald Davenport, supervisor of the softball program, announced today that arrangements have been completed for a game between the Stewart Avenue Mar-keters, champions of the American Division, and the Barnett Grocers of Clinton, a team which has won 26 out of 28 games this season. The Stewart and the Barnetts will play the 8 o'clock game.

At 6:45 o'clock the Grade School All-Stars of Sedalia will oppose a picked team from the Marshall grade school league.

The Booster-Rosenthal game which will be their third in the play-off series, now even at one victory apiece, will start about 9 o'clock. The Boosters evened the series Tuesday night with a 6 to 1 triumph after the Rosenthals had taken the lead in the playoff with a 12 to 4 decision in the opener last week. To date the two teams have met four times, each winning twice.

They say it is a real treat to visit Tony Galento's Orange N. J. bar the night Tony wins a fight. Prof. Billy McCarney, the fight manager, is again holding up corners on W. 49th street after three weeks in the sticks getting a suburn. Mike Jacobs, who has a weakness for silk shirts, left an important conference yesterday to put in an order for three dozen of same—at $10 per throw (cut rates). Rip Collins of the Cubs, as smart as they come, says the Boston Bees have the best pitching staff in base-ball in Lou Fette, Jim Turner, Dan-ny MacFayden, Young Lanning and Guy Bush. Tony Galento's knock-out of Al Etore may earn the old night stick a shot with John Henry Lewis in Pittsburgh.

Olympic boxers, Howell King and Joe Church, ordered sent home by boxing committee.

Three years ago—Paul Runyan won P. G. A. golf title by defeating Craig Wood, 1-up, 33 holes.

Five years ago—Pittsburgh led National league pennant race by six games; U. S. Davis (Cuppers) lost first two singles against France.

THE SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, July 29.—A James J. Braddock-Max Baer match is in the making here. Mike Jacobs and Joe Gould spent more than two hours with Anell Hoffman, Baer's pilot. Terms were agreed to and the date set for sometime in Sep-tember. Everything was settled except the site. It will be Los An-geles, Chicago or San Francisco. If the Cubs have a weakness, why don't they begin to show it. Don Budge says he will not turn pro. Everyone else says he will. We'll string along with the "pippl". Dick Bartell's groin injury is so painful, the scrappy Giant shortstop has to sleep in a chair.

Out in St. Louis they say they are having the coolest summer in 50 years because the Cards aren't hot any more. Lon Ambers, the lightweight champ, saw plenty when he went down to Philadelphia the other night to see Henry Armstrong (a possible future opponent) belt out Benny Bass. A lot of smart baseball men will bet you Rogers Hornsby will be managing the White Sox next year. It cost the White Sox $2,000 to insure last Sunday's double bill with the Yankees against rain.

Why all the commotion in the local sheets because Owner Sam Riddle has announced War Admiral will not run at Saratoga? Shucks! Old Orlo (Hardrocks) Robertson, the GP racing expert, told you as much the day after the horse was hurt at Belmont weeks ago. Hardrocks said if War Ad-miral starts again this year it will not be before the Belmont meeting in September. All the publicity he thinks he's getting over here seems to have gone to Tommy Farr's head. He thinks he's so hot he wants to ditch his manager after March 1 and collect 100 per cent of his purses for himself.

Promoters of the Farr-Louis heavyweight bout would be glad if Max Schmelling changes his mind about coming over to see it. They fear he would steal the show. Why not? He's the guy who knocked out Louis and whom Farr can out, ain't he? Burleigh Grimes has personally plunged into the bushes to get the Dodgers some help. Johnny Rizzo and Enos Slaughter of Columbus and Good-win Rosen and Mel Simons of Louis-ville are the birds he has his eye on. Dutch Meyer, former Texas Christian grid star, broke into pro baseball in the Southern Association in a big way. A homer, triple, double and single in four trips up.

They say it is a real treat to visit Tony Galento's Orange N. J. bar the night Tony wins a fight. Prof. Billy McCarney, the fight manager, is again holding up corners on W. 49th street after three weeks in the sticks getting a suburn. Mike Jacobs, who has a weakness for silk shirts, left an important conference yesterday to put in an order for three dozen of same—at $10 per throw (cut rates). Rip Collins of the Cubs, as smart as they come, says the Boston Bees have the best pitching staff in base-ball in Lou Fette, Jim Turner, Dan-ny MacFayden, Young Lanning and Guy Bush. Tony Galento's knock-out of Al Etore may earn the old night stick a shot with John Henry Lewis in Pittsburgh.

John Z. Montgomery Scores Hole-in-One at Swope Park Links

John Z. Montgomery joined the hole-in-one club Wednesday after-noon by holing his tee shot on the 125-yard sixteenth hole at the Swope Park course in Kansas City.

Montgomery, who used a nine iron to accomplish the feat, was playing with John Joe McGrath and "Lad-die" Keens.

It was said to be the first ace on No. 16 at Swope Park this season and marked the fourth time in two years that McGrath has been a wit-ness to an ace.

WARRENSBURG CLUB PLAYS A'S TONIGHT

The Sedalia Athletics will try for their fifth straight victory and their twelfth triumph of the season when they take on the Warrens-burg Merchants under the Liberty Park floodlights at 8:15 o'clock to-night.

Bailey, a righthander, who has won both of his starts with the A's, one a two-hit shutout against the Jefferson City Tweekies, will be on the mound for the Sedalians.

He probably will be opposed by Dawson, a righthander, who has compiled a good record for the Warrensburg club this season.

Manager Palmer Nichols will re-ly on the regular Athletics lineup tonight.

The probable lineups: Warrensburg—Peters, 1b; Kirck-mer, 2b; Tynes, ss; Turner, 3b; Tay-lor, If; Johnson, rf; Keller, cf; Black, c; and Dawson, p.

Sedalia—Livengood, 1b; Lobaugh, 2b; Light, ss; Barnes, 3b; Case, If; Brownfield, cf; Zey, rf; Summers, c; and Bailey, p.

DEFLATED GAS HOUSE GANG FURNISHES THE MAJORS A MYSTERY

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK, July 29.—Add major mysteries, what ever happened to the gas in the Gas House Gang?

Except for Ducky Wucky Med-wick, who hasn't changed a bit from the villain role, the rough, tough boys from the other side of the railroad tracks appear to have become a bunch of empty bags. Their gas is all gone.

To be sure, they can still knock off those perennial pushovers, the Dodgers and Phillies, perpetual sec-ond-division lads, but when they come up against the big boys, or even against the up-and-coming Bos-ton Bees and the aspiring Chica-go Red Sox, the Gas House Gang has become just a mild breeze. In fact, without Dizzy (Sore Toe) Dean, there isn't enough pitching and pep to get a rise even out of them-selves.

In their last complete circle of the league, facing all of the other seven clubs, they have lost 13 games while winning eight, for a .381 percentage. They dropped four straight games to the Bees and three out of four to the Reds.

At the moment, their hold on a first division berth is as shaky as a wildcat stock. They're just three games out of fifth place.

There was a time when for any club to spot the Cards three runs in the first inning was an easy way to commit baseball suicide. But not any more.

The Giants did it yesterday. Cliff Melton let them pile up three runs in the opening frame, and then stopped them cold with six hits through the last eight innings. Meantime, Mel Ott and Wally Berger belted out homers as the Giants clubbed Lon Warneke to the show-ers and went on to an 8-4 win.

Dorais Leading in Vote to Name Coaching Staff for College Ol-Stars

CHICAGO, July 29.—Charles E. (Gus) Dorais of University of De-troit, was off to a big lead today in the nation-wide vote to select a coaching staff for the college squad which meets the national profes-sional football champion Green Bay Packers at Soldier Field, Sept. 1.

Dorais had a point total of 202, 668—with each first place vote counting three points, second places two points, and thirds, one. He had received 67,385 firsts, 218 seconds and 138 thirds. Pete Vaughn of Wabash College, had 13,416 points for second place, with Lynn Wal-dorf of Northwestern, third at 10,443.

Other leaders were: Bernie Moore, Louisiana State University, 2,979; Alvin (B) McMillin, Indiana, 2,736; Elmer Layden, Notre Dame, 2,728; Jimmy Phelan, Washington, 2,660; Buff Jones, Nebraska, 2,553; Jack Sutherland, Pittsburgh, 2,514, and H. O. (Fritz) Crysler, Princeton, 2,131.

SOME CORN FUTURES DOWN FOUR CENTS

CHICAGO, July 29.—(AP)—Corn became the grain market leader today, plunging down in some cases four cents a bushel, the extreme permissible limit for any 24 hours.

Unusually favorable prospects for the 1937 domestic corn crop formed the basis for heavy selling, and the December future representing the new crop tumbled to a fresh bottom price record for the season. Notice was also taken that acute feed shortage was being relieved by substitutes for corn.

At the close, corn was 1 1/2 to 4 cents under yesterday's finish, Sept. 92 1/2¢, Dec. 70¢ to 70 1/2¢; Wheat 1 1/2 to 1 1/2¢ down, Sept. $1.17 to $1.17 1/2¢, Dec. $1.18 1/2 to $1.19, and oats 1/4 to 1 cent off.

SOME DECLINE ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—A few steels and specialties pushed up substantially in today's stock market but many leaders lacked rallying stamina and small losses were plentiful at the finish.

Bethlehem attracted a following as guesses of the company's second quarter earnings, to be released after the close, ranged from $2 to more than $2.25 a share. The issue was up nearly 2 points at the best. Wheeling Steel got up more than 3.

Republic Steel was an exception in this sector, falling back when a sharp

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

This Is PUBLIC SERVICE

... at every hand, in countless ways, your electric, gas and water companies are at your service.

ELECTRICITY

"SERVANT TO THE PUBLIC"—this is a title which your public utility companies are proud to bear . . . and their single object is to live up to it every hour of the day, year in and year out.

Perhaps the most important service your electric, gas and water companies render, is in providing you improved facilities at steadily reduced rates. While everything else has been going up, the cost of utility service has been going down. In spite of soaring living expenses—in the face of sharply advanced labor and material costs—your utility rates have declined constantly during the past 15 years, as indicated by the chart above.

Reduced rates have made it possible for our customers to use more and more utility service. Everyone now can afford to enjoy the commodities your utilities provide daily for varied purposes. Electricity, gas and water are the very foundation of our modern civilization. They are your servants in the work of the world because they are necessary to every enterprise in which men gain employment and make a living. They are your servants in your hours of rest as well, because they bring comforts and conveniences into the home for all to enjoy.

Think, as you go through the day, how many times you call upon these servants and how willingly, quickly and cheaply they respond! Servant to the Public means servant to you, your family, your business—with ever-improving standards of service and ever-increasing value and economy to you.
